

What are Titan Poker Bonus Codes?

Titan Poker bonus codes are alphanumeric sequences. In other words, they are strings of characters that you would receive that you could then input as codes later on. Examples of alphanumeric strings include "BANK600", "TPDEAL" and so forth. You've seen these types of codes frequently no matter what you do for a living or for your hobbies, because alphanumeric codes are ubiquitous throughout the modern world.

What the alphanumeric sequences do on the other hand is a bit harder to track down. Depending on the specific bonus code that you are using, there are a number of different things that a Titan Poker bonus code might do. In order to make this discussion a bit easier to understand, we will start at the bottom and look at the basic functions of a bonus code. With that complete, it is then possible to put additional functions on top of that basic function in a layering process that will eventually show you the difference between basic bonus codes and the most feature-rich ones that are around. Different Titan Poker bonus codes will do different things, which is why a more general approach to this question is necessary in this case.

The main thing that every bonus code does is link a player account to an affiliate account. In other words, when you take a bonus code and enter it into the field, what you are essentially doing is telling the Titan Poker representatives that you are entering Titan Poker because you heard about it and/or were convinced to join it by the affiliate that is represented by that particular bonus code. As a bonus for helping to get someone to join Titan Poker, the affiliate will then receive a cash payment or some other monetary equivalent for the work that they have done. In turn, you can use your own bonus code to help other people experience Titan Poker as well and get the same deal out of the process.

On top of this primary function, Titan Poker bonus codes will also sometimes increase the normal bonus that is available through the Titan Poker process. In fact, if you see the Titan Poker code in question specifically referred to as a bonus code by Titan Poker as opposed to a tracking code, affiliate code, referral code or marketing code, you can be sure that it is likely in this second category of codes. It might double the bonus, triple it or simply change something from either the percentage of monetary figures, but the main point is that it will improve the bonus in some way.

Finally, if you are particularly lucky and join Titan Poker at the right time, you might get the chance to use their third tier of bonus code in which you not only get the affiliate tracking and signup bonus increase, but you also get access to potential future promotions based on the alphanumeric code that you provided. These types of bonuses are relatively rare, but they do exist and are given out during particularly good financial times.
